PROFESSIONAL ENGLISH FOR THE WELDING TRADES

You know the work. Now say it in English.

Twelve interviewers who work where you work. Speak your answers out loud — then see exactly what a strong answer needed, in the sentence you should have said.

TODAY

You can do the job. In the interview the words come out small, and they hear a beginner.

AFTER THE PRACTICE

You name the permit, the isolation and who you told — and the supervisor writes nothing down twice.

12 interviewers, each on one part of your story

12 workshop scenarios, from first day to permit

3 trades — the room changes with you

Twelve coaches, any order

What your answer missed

Real workshop situations

Your trade, not "English"

Welder, pipefitter or boilermaker — the scenario, the words and the model answers all change with you.

Interviews you can repeat

Introduction, handover, stop-work, quality report, permit and isolation. Any of them, as often as you like.

A report that names the gap

What you covered, what you missed, and the words that would have carried it — then a strong answer to hear and say back.

A whole crew in the room

HR, your supervisor, the tool room, materials and safety — and you can see who is speaking.

Scored on what you said

Every word graded from your own recording. No score is ever invented from an activity you merely opened.

Works on a bad line

Lose the network mid-interview and it keeps going, working down its question list.

12-WEEK BUSINESS ENGLISH MASTERY SYSTEM

In 12 weeks, stop rehearsing. Start saying it.

25 focused minutes a day, six days a week. Real meeting language, your own voice recorded and scored — until the version of you who hesitates begins to disappear.

WEEK 1

You write the sentence in your head, check it twice, and the moment has already passed.

WEEK 12

You say it while you're still thinking it — and the room turns to you.

+32 points on your speaking score

84 sessions, already planned for you

15 languages for the instructions

A 12-week guided plan

Open the app and today's session is already chosen for you.

Shadowing Studio

Paste any YouTube clip, loop 20–30 seconds, shadow it until the rhythm is yours.

Executive Polish — AI

Say it casually. Get two boardroom-ready rewrites in seconds.

Feedback on every word

Record yourself and hear exactly which words are costing you.

Proof you're improving

Every attempt plotted — speaking, grammar and vocabulary — so you never have to wonder.
